Chinese characters (simplified Chinese: 汉字; traditional Chinese: 漢字; pinyin: Hànzì; literally: "Han characters") are logograms developed for the writing of Chinese. They have been adapted to write a number of other Asian languages. They remain a key component of the Japanese writing system (where they are known as kanji) and are occasionally used in the writing of Korean (where they ...

One of the most common hieroglyphs, snake, was used in Egyptian writing to stand for a sound like the English J , because the Egyptian word for "snake" was djēt. It is speculated by many [who?] that Semitic people working in Egypt adapted hieroglyphics to create the first alphabet, and that they used the same snake symbol to represent N, because their word for "snake" may have begun with that ...
